

Dear Mr. President,

Respectfully,

Today the world is witnessing a president who, within a single year of leadership, has halted multiple wars. In the hearts and minds of peace-loving people everywhere, such leadership deserves to be remembered in history as a true champion of peace. Above all, you have gathered world leaders in an effort to rebuild war-torn Gaza.

Yet false narratives now encourage confrontation with Iran. Those behind such efforts understand that conflict would tarnish your peace legacy and overshadow the achievements you have worked to establish.

Mr. President,

With your permission, I will share this letter with Vice President Vance, Secretary of State Rubio, and the 21 Senators who are members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

For more than twenty years, Cyrus Force has advocated a path toward change in Iran through constitutional reform — not military action. We have written several books explaining that the structure of the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Iran sustains the present system.

Our proposed roadmap is inspired by constitutional movements inside Iran: the Green Movement, the 2019 civic manifestos, the Women, Life, Freedom movement, and other recent public appeals — all of which ultimately demanded the formation of a constitutional assembly and revision of the constitution.

The ruling clerical establishment will not accept this legitimate demand unless the United States formally recognizes that several provisions within Iran's constitution institutionalize hostility toward America and its allies and promote ideological expansion beyond Iran's borders.

If military confrontation — which would strengthen the ruling establishment — is replaced with a constitutional-focused policy, the United States would possess a far more effective tool: targeting and freezing the vast financial assets held abroad by regime officials and affiliated networks.

In addition to our previous publications, we have a booklet currently in print titled "Iran & The West — Iran's Political Theology and the Road to Peaceful Constitutional Reform". Copies will be sent to the White House and to the Senators.

Respectfully,

Sohrab ChamanAra
