

Proposal to Change Battlefield to Constitution

Dear Mr. President,

I have just sent you by Priority Mail a copy of my new book, "BB or Not BB," with a cover letter.

For 20 years, I have written to the White House urging that we read and confront the Constitution of the Islamic Republic — a document your national security advisors have neither studied nor understood.

My books document with proof from their own ideology and Quranic references that continued conflict, killing, and destruction of infrastructure is to the benefit of the Ayatollahs.

Years ago, I wrote to the White House: "At night, the Ayatollahs pray for America to attack them." This conflict is their dream come true.

The past is past. We must now plan for the day after the Ayatollahs fall, as you envision.

The essence of my proposal is in one sentence: Change the Battlefield from the Persian Gulf to the Constitution.

Instead of military confrontation, we should support the Iranian people's right to a Constituent Assembly and a new Parliamentary Constitution.

This is a political solution to prevent another endless and destructive war.

I respectfully ask that you have your National Security Advisor read this book.

If you have any questions, I am available at any time.

Respectfully,

Sohrab ChamanAra

Author of "BB or Not BB"
